Rail passengers advised to check journeys ahead of new London Northwestern Railway timetable

Rail passengers using the West Coast Main Line are being advised to check before they travel when a new timetable comes into effect this weekend.

London Northwestern Railway is introducing a new timetable on Sunday 15 December, aimed at improving the reliability of services on the network.

Whilst the changes will benefit rail users, there may be alterations and changed stopping patterns for existing London Northwestern services.

Passengers preparing for their Monday morning commutes should check ahead of time, in case of any change to their usual travel plans.

Jonny Wiseman, head of customer experience at London Northwestern Railway, said: “The new timetable we introduced in May brought in new journey opportunities and extra capacity, but also introduced a level of complexity which seriously affected reliability.

“We know things need to improve and these upcoming changes will provide a more reliable service. However, many commuters are creatures of habit, so we’re advising passengers to check their travel plans carefully, before heading out to work on Monday morning.”

The West Midlands Trains franchise started on 10 December 2017 and will run until 2025/26.

West Midlands Trains operates 1,300 services a day, manages 150 stations and provides over 70 million passenger journeys a year. Over the course of the franchise, West Midlands Trains will be investing £1 billion into the rail network to deliver new trains, improved routes and station upgrades. This will include 400 new train carriages across the network and space for an extra 85,000 passengers into Birmingham and London at peak times.

The franchise is a joint venture between Abellio (70.1% share) and East Japan Railway Company / Mitsui & Co., Ltd (29.9% share in a 50:50 split). Abellio is the international passenger transport subsidiary of the Dutch national railway company, Nederlandse Spoorwegen. In the UK, Abellio operates ScotRail and Greater Anglia train services, Merseyrail services in a joint venture with Serco and buses through Abellio London. For more information visit www.abellio.com
